ABOUT THE CITY

Łódź is the third largest urban centre in Poland. The greatest development of the city took place in the 19th century when Łódź became one of the most important centres of textile industry in Europe. Currently, the economy of Łódź is based on the service sector. Some of the largest companies from all over the world have relocated their branches to the city. Łódź is also a centre of creative industries, attracting a growing number of qualified employees from various industries such as IT, retail, real estate and sustainable development. The city is also one of the country's largest cultural and academic centres. Despite the dynamic development and constant changes taking place in the city, Łódź does not forget about its roots related to the 19th-century textile industry. Old factories located in the city centre are not demolished, but instead turned into service centres and tourist attractions. The historic pre-war tenement houses are being renovated to preserve the original layout of the city.

The Stare Kino Cinema Residence hotel is the only place of this type not only in Łódź, but also in Poland. The hotel convention is not a coincidence. The inspiration to create a place that pays tribute to the film tradition of Łódź was the history of the property at 120 Piotrkowska St., because it was here that the first permanent cinema in Poland was established. The interiors of the hotel are inspired by the most famous films with Łódź roots, e.g. "The Promised Land" or "The Career of Nikodem Dyzma", and world productions such as "The Godfather", "Titanic" or "Breakfast at Tiffany's". The facility has two conference rooms and a cinema room. Guests can choose from 50 apartments with kitchenettes and bathrooms. Each room is a separate cinematic story.

Art_Inkubator at the Art Factory in Łódź is a modernized part of a complex of 19th century red brick factories in Księży Młyn. The idea to renovate the former textile warehouses was to preserve the original elements as much as possible. Thanks to this, modern interiors coexist with the over 100-year-old floors, cast iron pillars and original windows. The heart of the building is a glazed courtyard between two buildings. On almost seven thousand square meters, conference, exhibition and multi-functional rooms, rooms for business meetings, a stage, as well as a club and café were built.

Karol Scheibler's Palace is an excellent example of residential architecture characteristic of the second half of the 19th century. Its additional historical value is the fact that it was the first mansion of this type in industrial Łódź. The palace is also one of the most filmed facilities in Łódź - more than 30 feature films, series and theater performances were shot there, not counting short films made by students of the Film School located next door. Since 1986, the Palace has been home to the Museum of Cinematography.

The museum spaces are under renovation by mid-2021. The seminar and cinema hall operates independently.
